Celebs sport some nasty end results thanks to their plastic surgery obsession

KATE MOSS

While the British supermodel has an enviable figure despite her hard-partying lifestyle, it looks as though the 34-year-old may have turned to surgery to try to give herself a bit of a boost.

As well as a rumoured nose job, there's talk Kate's opted for a little liposuction after she was spotted out in London sporting a strange-looking section of crinkled skin above her knee.

The crumpled area of her thigh suggests the supermodel may have tried to eliminate all traces of fat from her already slender legs, but it seems the job's failed to smooth out her skin.

LIPO LEG

As her wild lifestyle catches up with her, there has been much speculation Kate turned to liposuction to keep her legs pin-thin
